

APIs

Easily share information between systems and multi-agency partners

Using APIs you can easily share information across authorised teams reducing the risk of 'hidden data' held in individual systems.

Having a single view of children and families allows you to easily identify any changes to behaviour or circumstance allowing you to act quickly and put in place the appropriate support.

Local authorities and inter-agency partners can reduce the costs and time taken to connect different applications allowing practitioners, departments and multiple agencies to share accurate and timely information on children whilst ensuring business processes are made significantly more efficient.

The security of the information is preserved at all times with risks between system integrations minimised.

Key Benefits

- Share information: easily and securely share information with professionals using other systems.
- Improve outcomes: real time information on children can be accessed and shared securely.
- Reduce costs: simplifies data management by removing the need for different systems and databases enabling you to focus resources where they are needed most.
- Standardised technology: Application programming interfaces (APIs) are based on industry standard web services.
